No changes have been made.

1. Team Project Work will be divided as equally as possible, if there are issues with getting the work done (Such as not understanding the assigned subject, or not being able to do it in a timely manner) then the group will be notified quickly (Within 24 hours).
2. All assigned Team Project Work should be completed 48 hours ahead of due date to allow Quality Control and or last minute stuff breaking having time to be fixed.
3. If 2 Meetings in a row are missed then a considerable update should be made by the person missing, and 3 Meetings in a row will never be missed (Without extenuating circumstance).
4. Standup meetings will be held on Thursdays and Saturdays at 5:30 PM AZ time by Zoom. They will be recorded. Each team member will discuss progress made, plans going forward, and necessary collaboration. One member will be chosen to record the required two-to-three-minute summary screencast of the next standup meeting until a full rotation is established. The summary video should be finished as soon as possible after the standup meeting, preferably immediately afterwards or the next day.
5. Disagreements in planning of the project should be handled in front of the team with all members input, and should be handled in a well meaning and friendly demeanor.
6. Don't Cheat, if you're struggling with material reach out to the group for help or swapping of workload.
7. All meetings require some sort of input, so if you're going to miss one, by the next meeting please provide a short update on what you accomplished since the previous standup, what you plan to accomplish before the next standup, and any issues that are blocking progress.
8. If the team attempts to communicate multiple times with an individual member and receives no reply for 7 days (Period of 2 meetings), then the team will have no choice but to assume the member has dropped out and say as such to the Professor.
9. Code is to be finalized no later than twenty-four hours before the due date to allow time to record videos without the project changing in the intervening time.
